So^th. Carolina GAZETTE.

MONDAY, December 17, 1753.

LONDON, Sept. 15.

WE have lately received the news of a patent's being granted, to eſtabliſh at Antwerp, a fabric of printed callicoes, which we hear mightily alarms the principal dealers in thoſe goods at Amſterdam, and the printers about this city, and not without great reaſon, as it's confidently reported, that as ſoon as the undertakers have brought their project to bear, they have a promiſe that a duty of 8 or 10 per cent. ſhall be laid on all ſorts of printed callicoes, which will certainly cut off that whole branch of trade, both with us and the Dutch, which is very conſiderable, and therefore worth the attention of our miniſtry and the States general.

We have juſt had an account, that the Dauphineſs of France is brought to bed of a ſon, who is to go by the title of Duke of Aquitaine.

A liſt of the important differences depending between the courts of Europe

1. Hanover's ſquabble with Pruſſia about Eaſt Frieſland.
2. Affair of the Sileſia Loan.
3. Limits between England and France in North America, and the affair of the Neutral-Iſlands.
4. A free navigation in the Weſt-Indies, without ſearch or viſit, to be obtained from Spain
5. Boundaries of Finland to be ſettled between Ruſſia and Sweden.
6. Dutchy of Courland to be provided with a new ſovereign.
7. Quarrel between Spain and Denmark about treaties with the African ſtates.
8. Affairs of the Eaſt-Indies to be ſettled between the Engliſh and the French.
9. Reſtitution or ſatisfaction to be made to France for ſhips taken by the Engliſh during the war with Spain.

Of all which matters, ſome may poſſibly be adjuſted by treaty, and ſome decided by the ſword

To which we may add, the Paper War of the Jews, which their friends may bring to a concluſion next winter, if they pleaſe.

Extract of a Letter from the Hague, dated Auguſt 30.

They have unqueſtionably at Conſtantinople, by intelligence which they hold with Bagdad and Erſerum, the beſt advices of what has paſſed in Perſia, ſince an Armenian prince has formed the deſign of re eſtabliſhing tranquility there, under the Auſpices and Standard of Jeſus Chriſt, he being an open profeſſor of the Chriſtian religion: But the Turks, without having ſtudied either the works of Machiavel, the prince of politicians, or the authors who have refuted him, yet very well underſtand their own intereſt, and act with the utmoſt policy to promote it, as appears by what the Chriſtian miniſters, who reſide at Conſtantinople informs us; they ſay in their letters, that the members of the Divan ſpeak with great contempt of the exploits of the Chriſtian conqueror; but at the ſame time obſerve, that the merchants of Aleppo, and the other trading cities in the Turkiſh dominions, who have relations in Perſia, ſpeak a different language, and already look upon Prince Heraclius as the aſſured poſſeſſor of the throne of the Sophi's. Theſe advices, which agree with thoſe that we have hitherto received by the way of Moſcow, are fully confirmed by the ſtep which this conqueror, it's ſaid, has juſt taken, of ſounding the Empreſs of Ruſſia, in order to know whether ſhe is diſpoſed to receive an embaſſy, which he is deſirous of ſending to acquaint her with the ſucceſs of his arms, and to eſtabliſh ſuch a good underſtanding as may contribute to the happineſs of the ſubjects of the two Empires. In order to form a ſolid judgment of this affair, it will be neceſſary, perhaps, to wait for, and ſee the notification which Prince Heraclius himſelf ſhall make of the ſucceſs of this enterprize, and whether the miniſtry of Moſcow, will accept of the offer that he makes: We ſhall probably ſoon know this, and with circumſtances which will likewiſe learn us what the courts of Vienna and London think of this revolution in Perſia, they having been conſulted thereupon, and the common intereſt of the three powers duly weighed and conſider'd, in order to promote the ſame.

Paris, Sept. 3. The deputies from the parliament of Rouen, who were ordered hither by the king, had an audience yeſterday in his cabinet, which laſted juſt ſeven minutes, and ſet out immediately afterwards on their return. A great body of troops have been ordered to take quarters in Evreux, in order to protect the biſhop, who pretended to be in great fear: A much greater body has been ſent to Rouen, to overawe the conſtitution of the parliament. How theſe matters will end is more than any body can ſay.
